Caring for a child or young person with any kind of additional need (e.g. disability, mental health, chronic illness or emotional and behavioural difficulties) can throw up all kinds of questions. And carers can often feel very isolated, whether they live in the centre of a large town or a remote rural area.

But free, confidential and reliable information is only a phone call or email away. CHIP+ works throughout Highland to offer information and support to families and professionals living and working with children with additional support needs.

We may be able to deal with your query at once. If not, we will find out and get back to you as soon as possible.

The service is completely free of charge.
